Self Advocacy for Kids

No one is a better champion for your child than you. However, children who learn to self-advocate are confident, self-aware, and more socially adept.

As parents we take great joy in helping our children grow into full, happy, confident human beings. When they are young, part of our job is making sure they're getting attention and support from others to help them on their journey. Speaking to doctors, teachers, coaches, or friends is all part of being a parent.

Although we are our children's most vocal advocates, one valuable skill we can help them attain is self advocacy. This requires both willingness and ability.

- Tell your children it's OK to speak up for themselves.
- Listen to them describe their strengths and weaknesses.
- Discuss how to address these challenges.

Every child, regardless of his or her abilities, should have opportunities to look forward to and goals to reach for.

Participating in the Matrix

- Congratulate them when they assert themselves.
- Give feedback on ways to speak up more effectively.

Self Advocacy for Kids in the Early Years

It's never too early to begin teaching self-advocacy skills to our little ones. Even if it's as simple as asking them to choose which shirt they want to wear – red or blue – or which fruit they want to eat – apple or orange?

Giving them simple choices and praising their wise decision making skills will go a long way toward building their self-esteem and allowing them to feel confident in making whatever decisions they'll be capable of making as they grow.

Auto Defensa de Niños

Nadie es un mejor campeón que usted para su hijo. Sin embargo, los niños que aprenden a autodefenderse tienen confianza , conscientes de sí mismos, y mucho más sociables.

Como padres tenemos una gran alegría en ayudar a nuestros niños a crecer, felices, ser seres humanos confiados. Cuando son jóvenes, parte de nuestro trabajo es asegurarse de que van a obtener la atención y el apoyo de los demás para ayudarles en su viaje. Hablando con médicos, maestros, entrenadores o amigos es parte de ser un parent.

Aunque somos más defensores vocales de nuestros hijos, una habilidad valiosa con la que podemos ayudarles es a alcanzar es la defensa propia. Esto requiere voluntad y capacidad.

Forward

- Diga le a sus hijos que está bien hablar por sí mismos.
- Escucharlos describir sus puntos fuertes y débiles.
- Discutir cómo hacer frente a estos retos.
- Felicitarles cuando afirman a sí mismos.
- Comentarios y sugerencias sobre la manera de hablar más efic.

Auto defensa para niños en los primeros años

Nunca es demasiado pronto para comenzar a enseñar habilidades de autodefensa a nuestros pequeños.

Incluso si es tan simple como preguntar a elegir qué camisa quieren llevar, rojo o azul, o qué fruta se quieren comer, manzana o una naranja?

Dándoles opciones simples y alabar sus habilidades de tomar decisiones sabias que recorrer un largo camino hacia la construcción de su autoestima y permitiendo que se sientan seguros en la toma de cualquier decisión que van a ser capaces de hacer a medida que crecen.
